Brick Topper.

The Brick Topper is a Woven Polypropylene cover with an inner coating to protect both bricks and personnel on site. The dimensions of the Brick Topper coincide with the dimensions of standard and imperial bricks and block sizes, meaning one size fits all. Custom sizes are also available on a manufactured to order basis. Company logos/details can be printed onto the Topper, allowing exposure of business on site.

Stopping Efflorescence

If a brick is exposed to poor weather conditions, it can become saturated with water. With water entering the bricks pours, you are running the risk of the water leaking out once the brick is laid and staining the brickwork beneath it. This is called Efflorescence.

Efflorescence can occur when water is present in or on a brick. This can cause a crystalline deposit of salts on the surface of bricks. It has a white or greyish tint and is and consists of salt deposits left behind when water evaporates.

Other issues with uncovered stacks of bricks

- Stacks are at risk of collapsing, damaging the bricks and causing injury to workers.
- Brick Toppers bright orange colour gives the stacks of bricks high visibility on site.
- Uncovered stacks can cause them to be knocked off, which is very dangerous, especially when the stacks are at height on scaffolding.
